Are you interested in helping W&M students?

Through the years, in good job markets and bad, William & Mary alumni have been involved in helping students and fellow alums chart the course from college to career. No matter how hard-working or effective the Career Center staff is, we simply cannot do all that needs to be done. In fact, in a very real sense, you are the best resources to help prepare our students for this transition. Your experience, your credibility, and your advice are invaluable as complements to the programs, services and resources offered here on campus.

Please join us in a partnership helping W&M students make that challenging transition from college to career. We'd love to have you on our team!

Complete the form on the left if you'd like to get involved. See the descriptions below of the many ways you can help.
